

ALPECO LAUNCH TWO NEW EXCITING PRODUCTS AT FPS EXPO 2010

Alpeco Limited, the Aylesbury based liquid handling equipment company specialising in road tanker equipment, industrial meters, tanker loading skids are once again appearing at the FPS EXPO 2010 exhibition and this year can be found on Stand No B12.

A feature on the stand this year will be examples of Liquid Controls truck and depot meters, including the 3" M25 model, forming the heart of the DMX Hi speed bulk truck system, capable of bulk delivery rates of up to 1100 LPM. Adrian Baskott, Sales and Marketing Director for Alpeco commented. "We believe we are right to claim that this is the fastest delivery rate, in the industry, from a road tanker."

Adrian continued. "Also being shown for the first time will be the NEW iLevel road tanker gauging system, iLevel is a simple to use cost effective gauging system which allows the operator to view at the touch of a button the volume of liquid contained in each compartment. "

A demonstration TE550 electronic register with new software and plug and play imeter tracking device which not only tracks your tankers, but monitors and reports all meter and delivery information back to HQ in real time will be available for live demonstrations.

Show visitors are cordially invited to visit the Alpeco stand where they will receive a warm welcome from staff who will be pleased to discuss any of the company's products and who will also offer technical and other assistance with any project, specific or general.

Situated in the busy Buckinghamshire town of Aylesbury, Alpeco, its designers, project leaders and fleet of field engineers are close to all major cities in the UK via excellent trunk roads including the A41, from which easy access is obtained to the M40, M25 and M1 motorway network.

Editors Note: Alpeco Limited, are an Aylesbury-based liquid handling equipment company specialising in road tanker equipment, industrial meters, tanker loading skids and hydro valves. The company is one of only a handful in the UK and offers unrivalled expertise in the liquid handling field.
